Subject: Local School Wellness Policy: A Team Approach – Program Information from NFSMI

On October 18, 2005 at 12:00 PM, the National Food Service Management Institute (NFSMI) will present a two-hour program on Local School Wellness Policy development. This program can be viewed from your own office via webcast, or you may sign-up as a listening site to allow staff participation. Program information may be obtained at:

http://www.nfsmi.org/Education/Satellite/ss37/program_info.htm

The primary goal of the program is to provide child nutrition professionals and other key players in the school and community an opportunity to hear the most current school wellness policy information. The program will feature local school districts that have health and wellness efforts already under way. Arrangements allow listening and webcast participants the opportunity to call in and have their questions answered by a panel of experts.
